"Sandwich Seminars" mix lunch with information

"Emergency Preparedness for Small Businesses" was the topic for the Chamber's first "Sandwich Seminar" held Sept. 21 at the Lewis County Extension office.

Sixteen people attended the working lunch and listened as board member Steve Arnold, an emergency management consultant, explained how to "plan to stay in business" in the event of a disaster.

With materials supplied by Homeland Security, Arnold walked the group through a sample emergency plan beginning with where to locate in the event the business premises are not accessible and identifying a primary crisis manager as well as an alternate.

Risk assessment of potential natural and man-made disasters that could impact a business' operations allows specific planning options. Developing an emergency planning team, which includes employees, and coordinating with neighboring businesses can enhance the effectiveness of an emergency plan.

Information and materials are available for downloading at the Homeland Security website www.ready.gov

The Chamber plans to sponsor informative "Sandwich Seminars" on a variety of topics every other month.

Steve Arnold discussed various plans that businesses can develop to be prepared in the event of an emergency or disaster.
